THE CONTINENTAL PRESS ON GEN EKAL GORDON'S ACHIEVE-MENTS.

The Norddoutsche, referring to the latest news from the Soudan, says:-"The re-occupation of Berber is a great tactical success, proving Gordon's superiority to his antagonists. Strategically it makes Gordon master of one o the most important centres on the highway of traffic, from which he is able most seriously to threaten the flanks and rear of the besievers of Suskim. Finally, the re-occupation of Berber will have a great moral effect. It will inevitably discourage the inhabitants of the Desert and the Soudanese followers of the Mahdi. Gordon is now the unconditional master of the situation and may be considered as co-operating on equalterms with the leader of the new expedition to the Soudan. If it should be still considered necessary to despatch it."

Every Vienna paper of note speaks with enthusiasm of the deeds of General Gordon. The Tageblatt says the story of the defence of Khartoum is an African epopeeia, enacted in our own days. It proves that British energy and genius have not died out.

The New Free Press bows before the heroism the sonse of duty, the unexampled energy which Gordon displayed after being deserted by his

The Fremdenblatt, while praising Gordon' heroic deeds and triumphs, adds, "How much misery and bloodshed might have been prevented rather a one-sided one, for the Officers, who by doing seven months earlier what would now went in first put together the long total have been undertaken almost to no purpose but for the deeds of Gordon, who has saved from lisaster not only the Soudan but Egypt, and who has well deserved the gratitude of Europe. The Vienna Allgemeins regards the recenture hit the ball all over the place. When the touth of Borber by Gordon as one of the most glorious wicket fell he was still unconquered, and carried feats this generation has witnessed., It predicts, however, that the vanishing difficulties, in the contan will create diplomatic difficulties for England, which has now lost the pretext for the occupation of Egypt.

THE CONDITION OF SCALESWIG written by a correspondent of the Times in they did somewhat better in the second innings | Copenhagen of the treatment to which the Danish inhabitants of Schleswig are subjected by the Germans. - All the efforts of the authorities governing the duchy tend to the goal of crushing, and if possible, exterminating Danish language and Danish sentiment. The Danes in Schleswig cling with characteristic toughness to their language and to the old traditions of their race; they hate the Germans; they grean under the foreign yoke of suppression. Resisting all temptations and all menaces from Berlin, they still turn their regards and their love towards the Danish King and the bloodless sacrifice to surrouder the right of the solemnity and the beauty of those statues, or Danish people, and they swear to hold out, even for generations, until the glorious day comes, as it is sure to come in the fulness of time, when the German chains shall be broken. It would be a very trifling sacrifice for Prussis, that has the highest Power in Europe, to give those Denmark, the land of their predilection. The self-respect. To explain this, it is necessary to refer to the article in their Treaty, and the circumstances under which it was inserted. In June, 1858, an Angle-French force had made its dating from the time of Frederick VI., enriched way to Tientsin, and the Plenipotentiaries of those countries were about to negotiate commercial treaties, not for themselves alone, but for the whole civilized world. An American minister; with two missionary interpreters, were prelished. The vessels of that description will be sent under the protection of the Allies, and they comprised amongst craisers, of which there are also proceeded to negotiate a treaty mostly made five classes:-Cruisers with batteries, ordisers up of platitudes, but containing one pregnant with barbette of the first, second, and third article, the celebrated "favoured nation" clause classes, and, torpedo craisers. It contained another article, which if did caught the spirit of his master, Thorwaldnot important was certainly very quaint. It ocouples the place of honour, and runs as follows:-"Article I .- There shall be, as there has al- apartments adjacent to the Riddersal-a single ways been, peace and friendship between the United States of America and the Ta-tsing Empire, and between their peoples respectively They shall not insult or oppress each other for any trifling cause so as to produce an estrangeshould act unjustly, or oppressively the United into Babylon." > June 18th, 1859. The provisions of this article could hardly have een intended for practical use," seeing that the good offices of the United States are only to be called for in cases where China is "oppressed some other Power, so that not only is the American Government permanently disqualified for the functions of the mediator by being committed to a foregone conclusion, but it cannot even offer its services without insult to the other Power concerned, because to do so would be implicitly to charge it with oppression. The article is in fact a form of "bunkum," and was more likely inserted to conciliate the Chiness at the expense of others than for any practical purpose. But the practice of "talking at" friendly Powers by means of "dummy" articles in treaties is clumsy and free from inconvenience. Here another example. A committee came over from Washington in 1880 for the laudable purpose of making arrangements with China for the regulation of emigration and immigration. But it seems the opportunity of having a friendly "dig" at wicked old England was too good to be lost, so we find the following article introduced into the treaty of November 17th, 1880 :-Article II .- The Governments of China and the United States mutually agree and undertake that Chinese subjects shall not be permitted to import opium in any of the ports of the United States and citizens of the United States shall not be permitted to import opium into any of the open ports of China, or transport it from one open port to another open port, or to buy and sell opium in any of the open ports of China: This absolute prohibition, which extends to vessels owned by the citizens or subjects of either-Power and employed by other persons for the transportation of opium, shall be enforced by appropriate logislation on the part of China and the United States, and the benefits of the favoured nation clauses in existing treaties shall not be claimed by the citizens or subjects of either Power as against the provisions of this article." The article was purely platonic as regarded American citizens. So long as the trade in the inhabitants have proudly reared in their opinm stuck to them they stuck to the trade, milet, the loss would have been twenty-fold hands of the Sassoons and other Indian Jews and Parsees, neither English nor any other Europeans Raving part or lot in the matter. And as the American flag had enrirely disappeared from the coast of China, with no human prospect of its respecting, it was a carrying opium. The position, however, has suddenly changed, for the American flag has not only reappeared, but has become absolutely predominant on the coast and rivers of China. The magnificent steam floot of the China Merchants-a company rained by systematic robbery, internal and external-has just been made over on secret terms to an American firm. This stroke of business was effected by mont when the war seare was at its height, and after a sketch by Thorwaldsen. Three of the that is to order, the steamers being placed under the American flag. The Chinese Government on its part was not sorry to render the American Government this service at a time when it was counting so much on American diplomatic action But now that the carrying trade on the China coast is being carried on under the Stars and Stripes the opium clause in the Treaty of 1880 will have to be got rid of either by being formally abrogated or tacitly violated, for it was never Fredericksborg, and Sorgenfri, the residence o the Queen Downger. This same Riddersal was fully 120 feet long and 50 wide, its noble size giving an effect of lightness to decorations so massive and penderous that well-proportioned distances alone could have redeemed their heaviness. Of these ornaments, chiefly commandable for their effect of lightness and grace, were the gigantic frieze, by Bissen, the continuer of Thorwaldsen's work, and the diamond panelled coiling Bisson's frieze was an elegant processional design, representing a triumph of Cores and Bacchus. the palace just destroyed, the master hand of Thorwaldson and the patient conscientions skill of his follower had wrought all that could be considered in a true artistic sense beautiful. The imposing but not faultless facado was ornamented with four colosial bronze statues executed from the designs of the great Danish scalptor, himself Canora's pupil. Of these, one figure, Hercules, was executed by Thorwaldsen himself and the other three, Minerva, Newsis, and Asculapius, were the works of Bissen. four figures typified Strength, Wisdom, Justice, and Health. A curious tale is told, on well established authority, with regard to the last; and it accounts very oddly for the presence of Health, in the person of Asculapius, Thorwaldsen was in Italy when he received the commission to execute those colossal statues. the fourth of which should have represented not Health but Truth. The soulptor read "Sundhed;" for " Sandhed;" and to this pardonable mistake, possibly the fault more of the writer than of the reader, was attributable a change of design which was allowed to pass. In the tympanum of the partico is a group, likawise the design of Thorwaldson, representing Jupiter.

surrounded by other deities; all this crowding of heathen myths being in accordance with the taste of the age, and not at all derogatory to the sincere art of the sculptor. How great the national loss in the destruction of his works at the Christiansborg Palace we cannot estimate in vulgar figures. The original friezes of Thorweldsen, however, were especially prized; and it may not be out of place to mention that a merchant of Copenhagen was once offered, by a wealthy Londoner, a sum equal to £11,000 of Earlish money for a room emptied of every morable which it contained, the apartment in question, a mere closet in size, being enriched on its four sides by a treasure of that description. Had the flames reached, as it was feared they would reach, the splendid monument to Thorwaldsen, which, to the honour of his native city. is both Royal and boly, a palace and a mausoleum The Thorwaldsen Museum is a building which, as a monument to one man of gonius, is unique in all the world. Mr. Charles Prinsep, Statistical Reporter to the India Office, has compiled a singularly complete and instructive statistical abstract made on the basis of the reports and returns received from India. The period covered is from 1873-4 to 1882.3, the last year for which the official returns have been received. Some of the facts which these figures reveal are striking and significant. They speak volumes in favour of the progress which India has made under our rule, and they refute the sweeping and self-contradicting representations as to the impoverishment of the country. There is, perhaps, The fire at the Royal Castle at Christiansberg | the large import of treasure into the country
